Not illustrated. 1922 edition. Excerpt: ... chapter viii The Will Of The Spirit Three aspects of will. Desire-will. Obligation-will. Will of the Spirit. The struggle with the flesh. The impotence of moral law. The victory of the Spirit. No law for the spiritual. How attain it? By asceticism? Never! Distinction between the fleshly and the spiritual use of things. Joy-Gaiety-FreedomContentment, the four corners of God's Realm. Men love darkness. The Spirit must will. Why the soul has passed through aeons of evolution. To fit it for the irrevocable choice. Good or Evil. What the Great Choice means. The wonderful promises. The naive cannot understand. The man with cosmic consciousness enters into the Realm of God. There are three aspects of the will. There is the animal will with no morality, simple desire-will; there is the human will, with a sense of moral duty, the obligation-will; and there is the higher will of the spiritualized man, the choice of eternal good, the will of the spirit. To the animal it is said, Follow your desires, you cannot go astray. To the naive man it is said, Obey your sense of obligation, whatever your intellect tells you is right; thus will you have a clear conscience. To the spiritualized man it is said, There is but one possible choice, that between good and evil; choose goodness and you are among the blessed. To the animal, were it able to understand, the situation is a simple and a happy one. There are no aspirations, no confusions, no doubts. To the naive man there are no aspirations; there is a sense of the unfolding of consciousness to a nobler possibility; there is a struggle between the flesh and the spirit in the battle field of the soul; there are confusions of ideas of right and wrong, intellectual doubts and changing moral standards, subtle...
